Vacant airport to lease terminal

BY RICHARD MEEK

The idle terminal serves as testimony to an airport that rolled snake-eyes with the gaming industry.

Stennis International Airport, once a hub for gaming charter flights in Hancock County, is now but a sea of concrete surrounding a lonely terminal bearing a "For Rent" sign. Since Casino Magic has hooked up with Casino Airlink, and the Jubilee is departing for waters elsewhere, activity has come to a virtual standstill at Stennis.

The terminal is available for rent to any suitors, and even airport director Bill Stovall has moved his office off of airport grounds and into the Port and Harbor Commission office in Waveland. The only flights coming into Stennis are private, some business, and Air Force testing, according to Stovall.

The workforce has been reduced to two firemen and Stovall. Although Stovall said there were no layoffs, he did admit that when two firemen recently left, he had helped them secure other employment.

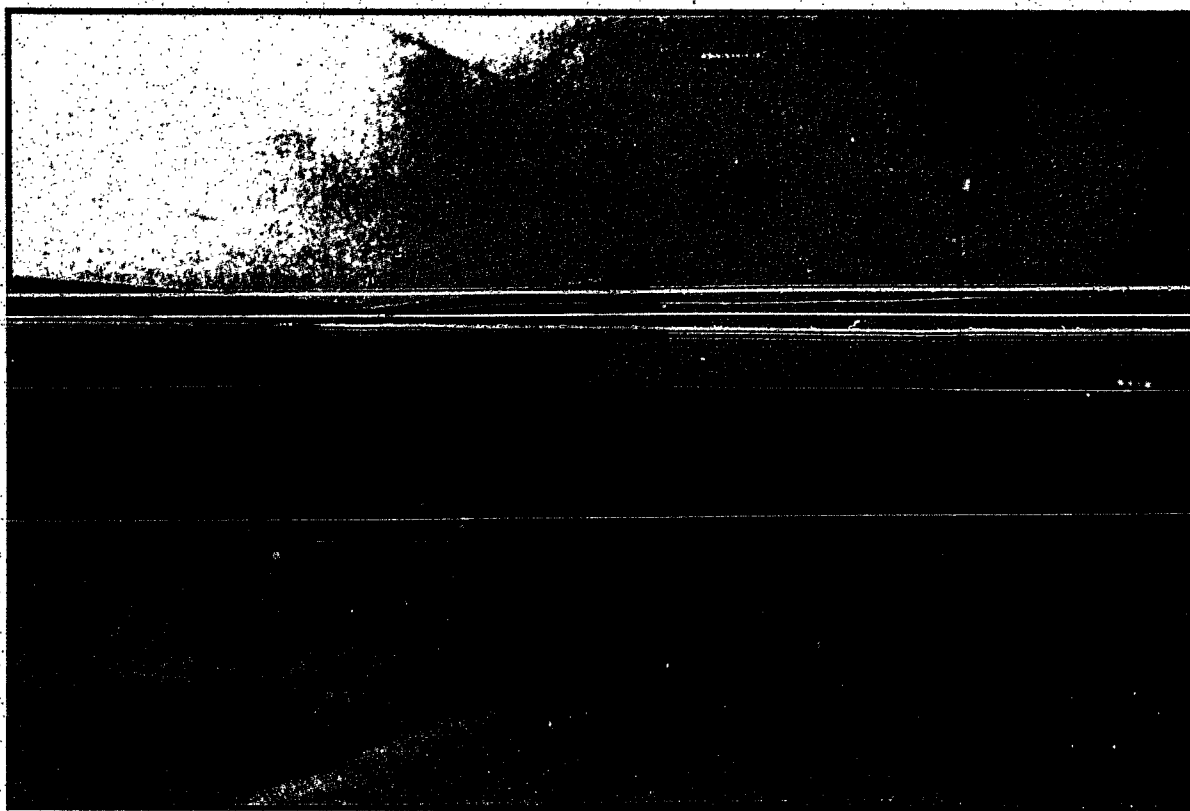

"We don't want to lay anybody off," he said.

Stovall, whose salary is approximately $50,000 a year, said he is also the Port and Harbor's Deputy Director, and is currently involved in "economic development" for the ship terminal and railroad operation at Port Bienvenue Industrial Park.

"I'm not strictly with the airport," Stovall said, adding that he is also involved with the day-to-day operations at the P&H office.

Although the airport is virtually shutdown, Stovall said the future "is good" for the troubled facility. He said FAA funds are being utilized to install a new lighting system and a second hangar will soon be constructed.

George Baxter seeking continuance

BY MARY G. SEILEY

George Baxter—who's technically still licensed as a key employee in any Mississippi casino—is seeking a continuance on his sentencing in a federal money laundering case.

The former chief operating officer of Jubilee Casino, Baxter pled guilty in August to one count of a seven-count federal indictment, exposing himself to up to 10 years in prison and a fine of up to $250,000. He's also agreed to repay $36,500 to the U.S. Customs Service as a reimbursement of funds he took in a money laundering scheme.

His sentencing is set for Dec. 6 in U.S. District Court in New Orleans. However, Baxter's attorney, Donald J. Rafferty, said Baxter needs eight to 10 more weeks of therapy to recover from the effects of a recent stroke.

Meanwhile, officials with the State Gaming Commission are preparing an amended case against Baxter in an effort to seize his license, or certificate of "suitability," which is required of all high-level casino executives in the state.

In February, the commission agreed to revoke Baxter's license and fine him $25,000 for his role in a 1994 party aboard the Jubilee. The casino had closed its doors to ride out a major storm, but Baxter and some other personnel stayed aboard through the night and threw a party during the storm.

The event cost Baxter his job at Jubilee, in addition to the action by the commission.

The Gaming Commission also fined Jubilee's parent corporation $25,000 for the unauthorized activity—a fine that the corporation did not contest. The state Tax Commission suspended the casino's liquor permit for a week, in a related punitive action.

Baxter, however, has contested the commission's fine and license revocation. Resolution of the matter was interrupted by the federal arrest and

Way cleared for Jubilee to sail

BY ED LEPOMA

An attorney representing Hancock County confirmed late Wednesday that the way has been cleared to allow the Jubilee Casino barge to leave Bayou Caddy Friday as planned.

The action took place as Jubilee employees, who were temporarily laid off Tuesday when the casino shut down, began to file unemployment claims.

Sam Keyes, the Jackson-based attorney who has been negotiating a settlement for county supervisors and the tax assessor, said Alpha Hospitality Corp., has honored its agreement to post bonds covering its outstanding 1994 property taxes and the amount it will owe Hancock County for 1995 taxes.

Keyes said that late Wednesday Alpha Hospitality purchased a bond totaling $191,000 for the amount currently overdue in 1994 taxes.

It also secured another bond for $212,000, representing the 1995 property taxes assessed against the Jubilee that won't be due until Feb. of 1996.

Keyes said the bonds were underwritten by a Double A-rated surety firm identified as the National Fire Insurance Co., Pittsburgh, Penn.

Alpha Hospitality Corp., which owns the Jubilee, and is negotiating to buy the Cotton Club, has requests before the Gaming Commission's 10 a.m. meeting in Jackson, Miss., this morning to re-license it to operate the Jubilee Casino when it moves to Greenville, Miss. and to operate the Cotton Club paddlewheeler, which it plans to move to the Bayou Caddy site.

As of late Wednesday, the Echo was unable to confirm whether the sale of the Cotton Club to Alpha had been finalized.

The shutdown of the Jubilee was already being felt in Hancock County by Wednesday.

The Mississippi Employment Security Commission extended hours at its claims office on Longfellow Road Wednesday, and dispatched two employees from its Hattiesburg office to assist the staff.

By 3 p.m. Wednesday estimates were, the local office, which usually is open each Wednesday from 9 a.m. until noon, had already handled almost 200 claims filed by Jubilee employees.

Sandra Warner, an interview supervisor with the Employment Security Commission, said she comes to Bay St. Louis each Wednesday to handle claims filed by Hancock County residents.

"This morning, they were lined up outside and sitting on the sidewalks waiting for the office to open," she said.

Warner said her supervisors instructed her to keep the office open an additional three hours Wednesday, from 1 to 4 p.m. to accommodate mainly Jubilee employees.

Warner estimated about 20 to 25 Jubilee employees had already filed claims as early as Tuesday with the state's unemployment office in Gulfport, but the majority would probably file locally.

Still others, she said, would file their claims in Louisiana, since some workers at Jubilee

Pass native waged annexation battle

BY ED LEPOMA

Gerald Roux knows full well the persistence needed when one draws a line in the sand.

He served in Korea when the United States committed American troops to ensure that Communist didn't cross the 38th parallel drawn by the United Nations. Thousands of Americans died defending that imaginary line.

Locally, Roux has fought in the trenches for the past 10 years as head of the Henderson Point/Pass Christian Isles Civic Association.

He and his association members have expended countless hours and spent approximately $80,000 since 1985 to defeat Pass Christian's efforts to annex their affluent residential area, which sits on a peninsula at the western tip of Harrison County.

On Friday, Oct. 6, the local battle was won when a specially-appointed Circuit Court Judge denied the city's annexation request based on any points raised in its petition.

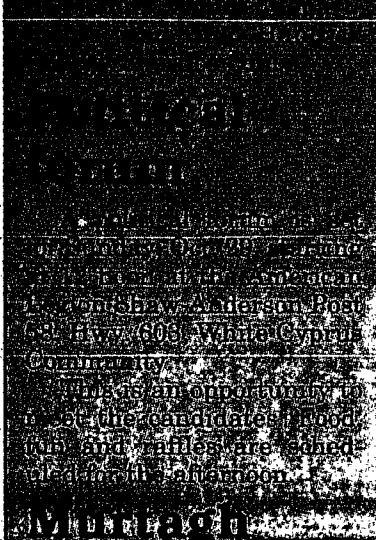

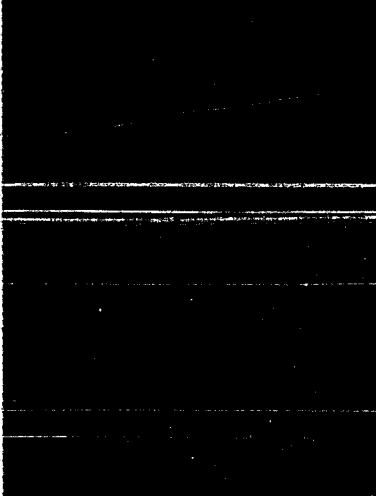

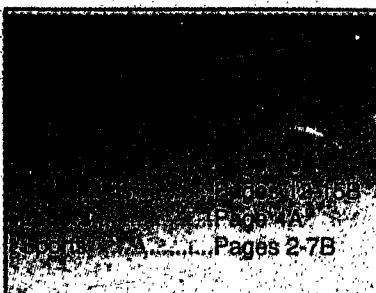

In fact, retired Judge R.P. Sugg, who formerly served on the Mississippi Supreme Court, was highly complimentary of local citizen's involvement in their community.

Sugg, who has heard many of the state's annexation disputes, said, in his ruling, "This case is different...because the people living in the annexation area have not spilled over from the city, but is an area that has developed primarily by citizens moving into the area from other states."

"They actively participate in the affairs of the community, as evidenced by the fact that although they only have slightly more than 600 residents of the area, the Civic Association has more than 600 members."

"They have shown their involvement by appearing before the Public Service Commission, Chancery Court, meetings of the city government, by seeing that the restrictive covenants are fol-

Fielding calls

An eighth grade student at Bay High School was still on the loose Wednesday after allegedly threatening his teacher with a knife earlier in the day, Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District officials said.

Superintendent Paul Tisdale said the student, who lives in Bay St. Louis, was on a three-day suspension beginning Wednesday. However, according to Tisdale, the student reported to math class, at which point teacher Keith Greenwood sent him to school disciplinarian Jack Rivers.

Tisdale said it was uncertain what Rivers said to the student. After leaving Rivers' office, the student returned to Greenwood's class and allegedly threatened the teacher with a knife. Two male students subdued the student, who took off

TOGETHER STILL
 Let me hold your hand as we go down hill,
 We've shared our strength and we share it still.
 It hasn't been easy to make the climb,
 But the way was eased by your hand in mine.
 Like the lake our life has had ripples too,
 Ill health and worries and payments due,
 With happy pauses along the way
 A graduation, a raise in pay.
 At the foot of the slope we'll stop and rest,
 Look back, if you wish; we've been truly blessed.
 We've been spared the grief of being torn apart,
 By death or divorce, or a broken heart.
 The view ahead is one of the best,
 Just a little bit father and then we can rest.
 We'll move more slowly, but together still,
 Let me hold your hand as we go down hill.

CONVERSATION '95

I would like to take this opportunity to inform the community that Conversation '95 was a great success. Although I was alone in the initiation of Conversation '95, upon asking, I received a lot of support from members of the community.

I would like to say thanks to God, because without him none of this would have been possible.

I would also like to say thanks to the organizers of the Million Man March for giving me the incentive to bring unity to our community.

The media gave me their support and it was appreciative. Additional support was given from several churches and businesses, and it was also appreciated. Last but not least, I would like to say thanks to everyone who participated or allowed their children to participate in the unity of our community.

Thank you, subsequent proceedings against Baxter, officials of the commission say.

As it stands, the commission wants to amend its original complaint against Baxter, adding Baxter's guilty plea in the money laundering case to its reasons for revoking Baxter's license.

Rafferty said the commission's move is not unexpected — and no doubt makes it more difficult to expect that he will be successful in keeping his license.

But Baxter, he said, has been wrongfully portrayed by the government as a "big money-laundering monster." And charges stemming from the October 1994 party, Rafferty said, are disproportionate to what really went on that night.

"We'll have a hearing. We'll be there," Rafferty said of Baxter's plans to continue his defense against the commission's actions. He added, however, no matter how strong a case Baxter can make that the incident amounted to an "innocent...innocuous" event, the commission will portray the affair as a "big sex-love party."

"We'll look at all potential defenses," Rafferty said of the amended complaint, adding Baxter is "not conceding that he should lose his license." He did concede, however, Baxter's felony conviction in federal court puts him in an "uphill" battle to retain his license.

Commission officials say while Baxter technically retains his license during the appeal process, they would block any attempt Baxter could make to re-enter the business within Mississippi while the case is pending.

"People have rights," said commission deputy director Chuck Patton. "When the commission takes a license, he still has a series of appeal rights... although we wouldn't allow him to operate in any casino."

"...If we've taken his finding of suitability, for cause, they would have to take us to court for him to work in a casino."

Larry Stroud, who will conduct the hearing in Baxter's license case, said the federal money laundering plea amounts to "a very serious charge" which goes "to the heart of his eligibility" to be involved in casino work.

Stewart Smith, commission attorney, said Baxter will have 20 days to file an appeal to the amended charges once they are served on Baxter. Still, he agreed with Patton, under no circumstances would Baxter be allowed to operate in a casino, even if an "emergency" court order were necessary to stop him.

Rape suspect arrested

A BaySide resident is lodged in the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility in lieu of a $200,000 bond on the alleged charge of capital rape.

Hancock County Criminal Investigator Glen Strong said, "William Garrett Jr., 31, 6077 West Lamar St., BaySide Park, was arrested on Sept. 25 by myself and a New Orleans detective as he left a hospital."

"Garrett was lodged in a New Orleans jail and waived extradition and was brought to Hancock County on Tuesday, Oct. 24. He is being held on the alleged charge of capital rape involving a young female child," Strong added.

Airport

"I came in here with a five-year plan and it's on track," said Stovall, who was hired last November from a small airport in Garden City, KS.

Stovall said that in the next 18 months, he expects "casinos to be flying in again and we will be having a cargo" facility.

However, the Magic is committed to Casino Airlink, which uses Gulfport-Biloxi Regional Airport exclusively. Alpha Hospitality Corp., which owns the Jubilee, said it expects to replace the facility with the Cotton Club, a smaller gambling ship currently located in Greenville, Miss. However, company officials said the sale of the Cotton Club to Alpha has not been finalized.

It is also uncertain whether the Cotton Club will implement an air operations program.

Stovall said he expects a proposed casino/hotel development in Diamondhead to "have a major impact" at Stennis. However, no timetable has been released as to when and if that project will begin construction.

He said he has not yet courted any cargo companies about relocating to the Kiln facility, but said he is "working with consultants" to pursue that business.

One bright spot is that Stovall said the terminal may soon be leased to a company that may relocate permanently on the Stennis grounds. He added that any lease of the terminal would contain a clause that would allow the airport to take over the building if it became necessary to service incoming flights.

"There are a lot of good things that will happen at the airport but they won't happen overnight," he said. "The airfields looks the best we've ever had."

"And we have our costs under control."

dates of employment.

Warner said it would be about two weeks before applicants will receive their first check. There is a one week waiting period after applicants file.

In that time, Warner said applicants will receive a notice telling them the amount of their weekly benefits, which is determined by their average salary.

Warner said the most anyone can receive is $180 a week for a maximum of 26 weeks.

She said she didn't have an actual count of how many applicants to expect, but a print out furnished her by the Jubilee listed about 600 employees.

Efforts to ascertain from Jubilee officials an exact total number of employees who were "temporarily laid off" and the estimated length they would be out of a job were unsuccessful.

Chief Financial Officer Tom Aro and John Kingsbury, the Jubilee's general manager, did not return phone calls.

Recent figures released in the Oct. 23 issue of Coast Business give an impact of the layoff on the local economy.

The biweekly publication ranks the Jubilee 23 among 24 of the coast's largest employers surveyed. It estimates Jubilee annual payroll at $13 million, with a force of 661 employees.

A Jubilee employee waiting for the claims office to open around 1 p.m., said casino officials told employees the layoff would range from four to seven weeks. She asked not to be identified, and would not comment further to the Echo.

Others approached would also not comment.

Alpha officials and Kingsbury issued a press release for publication Tuesday, saying plans were for the three-story, 61,000-square-foot Jubilee barge to move out of Bayour Cadet Friday.

He said the tides and traffic on the Mississippi River would determine how long it would take for the barge to be towed the 300 miles, but, "we anticipate arrival by Nov. 5."

Kingsbury said once the Jubilee arrives, it would be "one or two weeks before the Cotton Club sails for its lakeshore site." He said he anticipated grand opening of the Jubilee barge in Greenville "will take place on the week of Nov. 12."

In the prepared release, Kingsbury said, "A number of Jubilee employees would be sent to Greenville to assist the transition," but he did not give figures.

Kingsbury said he expected

"a minimal turnover rate" at the Lakeshore property, and vowed he would use "as many existing employees as possible for both the move and grand openings of each property."

On Highway 90, the giant Neon sign featuring Jubilee Joe announced to passing motorists, "We're not going. We're growing."

Jay Fox, director of marketing, said there were no plans to point out on the billboard that the casino was temporarily closed.

Term limits could cripple Mississippi

When Mississippians start talking about term limits there are a few facts which need to be taken into consideration.

First the political careers and benefits Mississippians have and continue to receive from Congressman William (Bill) Colmer, United States Senator James Eastland, United States Senator John C. Stennis, Congressman Jamie L. Whitten, Congressman G.V. (Sonny) Montgomery, United States Senator Thad Cochran, United States Congressman and Senator Trent Lott and Congressman Gene Taylor.

The above mentioned had a hand in one or more of the following in getting, expanding and even keeping the following facilities:

- The John C. Stennis Space Center.
- The Naval Air Station at Meridian.
- Keesler Air Force Base and its expansions.
- The Naval Oceanographic Office at Stennis.
- The Naval Construction Battalion at Gulfport.
- The Naval Home Port at Pascagoula.
- The numerous contracts at Ingalls, Trinity and other shipbuilding facilities along the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

—And this list could go on and on.

Had there been term limitations, Mississippi probably would have never received any of the above mentioned.

And there are others, too, who held office for many years in our state and local political offices who have made big differences.

Don't forget about how unproductive a "lame duck" person can be when they know they only have a few months to go in a position.

We already have term limitations, we as voters can vote them in as well as out.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

It is good to see Hancock County's leaders have taken the first steps in providing a sewer system for residents of Pearlinton, Lakeshore, Clermont Harbor and other areas of the county south of Interstate 10.

Personally I do not like the idea of dividing the county, but this is a start.

I really feel efforts should be underway to provide sewage to all areas of the county. Sure this would have to be done on a section-at-a-time basis, but the plans would be in place.

A sewer system is needed for all residents of the county. I do agree at this time, it is needed more in the southern section of the county.

There are some spotted sections of sewer systems in the area, but that just touches a very small number of households.

We need to keep our canals, bayous and rivers pollution free, and a sewer system for everyone is an answer.

The supervisors this past week approved recommendation that election commissioners vote to raise the pay of poll workers to $75 per day.

This complies with a new state law.

I feel it is about time that poll workers get an increase in pay.

It is a very long day for those who perform the task. In conversation with poll workers on election days, it seems the more activity there is, the faster the long day passes.

I know the last primary run-off was a very long day for the poll workers, because so few qualified electors took the time to vote.

I sure hope it is a different story in the November General Election.

You may want to mark November 7 on your calendar to make sure you do not forget to vote in the general election.

Tonight is the big night for the members of the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club.

It is the annual club's Barbecue Chicken dinner benefit at Christ Episcopal Church's Virginia Hall, 912 S. Beach Boulevard.

The dinners are for a donation of $5 each and will be served from 4 to 7 p.m. Tickets are available from Rotarians or can be purchased at the door. Take-outs are available.

This will be a good opportunity for mothers to get out of the kitchen tonight and give the dish washers a break.

I hope to see you at the Rotary fund raiser.

Proceeds will be used for club community projects. "This is the Bay Rotary Club's main fund raiser, and proceeds will be used for the club's community projects," said Don Miller, chairman.

Waveland Library

4th Annual Academy Day a huge success

It was my privilege to sponsor Academy Day once again this year at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg. More than 250 students and their parents came Sept. 23 to obtain information about a career in one of our nation's service academies.

Participation in Academy Day provides students interested in attending a service academy the opportunity to learn more about the application and nomination process, requirements for acceptance and chance to personally meet with academy representatives.

Representatives of the Coast Guard, Navy, Air Force, Merchant Marine, Army and ROTC were on hand to answer questions and provide information for students from seventh through 12th grade who are considering a career in the military.

This year my office was able to place several students from the Fifth Congressional District in U.S. Service Academies. Additionally, we were able to assist a number of students with receiving an ROTC scholarship.

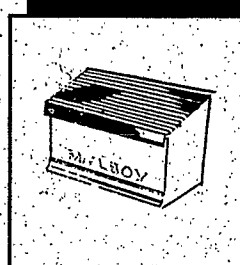

Over the past four years we have assisted more than 50 students from all over south Mississippi with the opportunity to attend a service academy.

Even though the academies accept a limited number of entrants every year, high school students and graduates may continue to apply until age 22. Military representatives stress that students who apply concentrate on good grades, leadership and remain active in community, school and athletics.

To receive information about academy appointments, preparation schools, or ROTC scholarships, write to Congressman Gene Taylor at 701 Main Street, Suite 215, Hattiesburg, MS 39401 or call 1-800-273-4363.

It could be a best seller. But it's free.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reader feels country could better spend money at home

Dear Editor:

American servicemen do not belong in Bosnia.

If Bosnians want peace, they will have peace without our country trying to force peace with a showing of 20,000 or more American soldiers.

There are so many other ways $1.5 billion can be spent right here at home.

I do not understand why President Clinton is thinking about it. Did he not learn anything from the failure in Somalia?

I hope the U.S. Congress will not allow this to happen.

The people in Bosnia do not want American troops there and openly on television have stated so.

Please write to our Senators Trent Lott and Thad Cochran and any other senators and ask, yes, beg them, to put a stop to sending Americans to countries where they are openly hated.

Respectfully,
Nina S. Garcia
Lakeshore

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

A reasonable budget path

The Senate has a long six weeks ahead. Between now and Thanksgiving, every member of Congress will make decisions that can only be described as historic.

The votes we cast — on balancing the budget, medicare, medicaid, welfare, and the whole legislative package known as the budget reconciliation bill — will determine the course of the American republic for at least the next generation. Our reconciliation bill will put the federal government on track to budgetary balance by the year 2002.

Contrary to what you have read and heard, our reconciliation budget will not cut total federal spending, nor does it cut tax revenues. Spending will increase by $2.6 trillion over the next seven years. Tax revenues will increase by $3.3 trillion.

Look at the percentages. If Congress made no changes to the budget, spending would rise by 37 percent and revenues by 44 percent. Under our seven-year balanced budget plan, spending will rise by 27 percent and tax revenues by 41 percent. Contrary to what liberals charge, those fall very short of draconian cuts.

In the fiscal year that ended on Sept. 30, the government ran a deficit of $161 billion. If nothing is done, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) says the annual deficit will continue to rise in 1996 and in each successive year, reaching $256 billion in 2002.

Here is one more set of numbers: In 1995, federal spending was $1.5 trillion. According to the CBO, if current policies were to continue, spending would be $2.1 trillion in the year 2002. That is an increase of $600 billion or 60 percent.

Under our budget plan, spending will rise between 1995 and 2002 by $358 billion or 24 percent, a figure slightly ahead of inflation if prices increase three percent annually. Only in Washington would a $358 billion increase be called a "cut."

Social security will remain intact, medicare will increase by more than six percent annually, and in seven years the government will not be spending any more than it takes in.

That is not bitter medicine. It is not a budget of pain. It is common sense. With this budget, the taxpayers are going to get the benefit of Congress' holding down spending. And, radical as it may seem to much of official Washington, we are going to leave more money in the hands of those who actually earn it: the workers, families and investors of America.

When it comes to restraining the size and spending of government, Mississippians I hear from do not think there is such a thing as too much change. In fact, they ask me why we cannot balance the budget sooner.

Senator Lott welcomes any questions and/or comments about this column. Please write to: Senator Trent Lott, 487 Russell Building, Washington, D.C. 20510 (Attention: Press Office).

LORRAINE PRITZLAFF
Lorraine Pritzlaff, 88, of Diamondhead, died Sunday, Oct. 22, 1995, in Gulfport. Arrangements are incomplete at Riemann Funeral Home, 25th Avenue, Gulfport.

DR. RICHARD REEVES
Dr. Richard Edwin Reeves, 82, of Bay St. Louis, died Friday, Oct. 20, 1995, in Bay St. Louis.

He was born in Lincoln, Neb. Oct. 28, 1912, and grew up in Farnam, a small town in central Nebraska. His father was Dr. Alfred Edwin Reeves, and his mother Jennie Maude Taylor. He was graduated from Doane College in Crete, Neb. and was admitted to the graduate program in chemistry at Yale University where he received his PhD in June 1936.

He then joined the faculty of Rockefeller Institute in New York City and in 1938 the staff of the Boyce Thompson Institute. His work there on the structure of the carbohydrate molecule and cotton fibers led to several United States patents for improving cellulose material. In 1941 he joined the staff of the newly opened Southern Regional Research Laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture in New Orleans.

He remained there until 1954 when he was invited to join the faculty of the Louisiana State University School of Medicine as a research biochemist. He continued his work there on the amoeba hystolitica. He retired in 1988 as a professor of biochemistry and tropical medicine and moved to Bay St. Louis.

In 1964 the National Institutes of Health granted him a career research award, the first professor at LSU Medical School to receive one. This award guaranteed federal financing of his salary for life. He also received major grants to support research staff and equipment from the National Institutes of Health, the Surgeon General, and the U.S. Army Armed Forces Epidemiological Board.

In 1977 he received an honorary doctor of science degree from his alma mater, Doane College. In 1982 LSU awarded him the H.M. "Hub" Cotton Faculty Excellence Award for his numerous scientific contributions and continued education.

tion to the profession. The same year Louisiana State University Medical Center held the Richard E. Reeves Symposium dedicated to his work on enzymes and amoeba. Attendees came from all parts of the world.

He was an authority on carbohydrate chemistry and the amoeba. He spent many years studying amebiasis, a tropical disease prevalent in Latin America. This led him to make numerous visits to Central America, especially to the LSU-sponsored programs of the International Center for Medical Research and Training in San Jose, Costa Rica. He is the author of hundreds of articles in the field of biochemistry.

Among his discoveries over the years was a crucial contribution to the World War II effort. Smokeless gunpowder deteriorated over time, so it was recognized early in the war that stabilizing gunpowder would greatly extend the effective supply of smokeless gunpowder. Dr. Reeves invented a new chemical formula that effectively cut the decay rate.

He is survived by his wife, Jean Haver Reeves; three children, William D., Judy J. and R. Michael Reeves. He has two grandchildren, Elena and Richard. He was a life-long sailor, member and Commodore of Bay-Waveland Yacht Club during 1963 and 1964.

A memorial service will be conducted Friday, Oct. 27 at 2 p.m. at Edmond Fahey Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis, where friends may call one hour before service time.

HUGH M. SELLERS
Hugh M. Sellers, 86, of Pass Christian, died Sunday, Oct. 22, 1995, in Gulfport.

Mr. Sellers was sent from Bradford-O'Keefe Funeral Home in Gulfport to Colonial Funeral Home in Colombia for services and burial.

JOSEPH TROULLIET SR.
Joseph George Troulliet Sr., 78, of Bay St. Louis, died Sunday, Oct. 22, 1995, in Pass Christian.

Mr. Troulliet was a native of New Orleans and a long-time resident of Bay St. Louis.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Claire France; parents, George and Lettie Ely Troulliet; sisters Barbara Dish, Mae Mae Charlotte, Cornelius Gorman; and a brother, Henry Troulliet.

Survivors include two sons, Joseph George Troulliet Jr. and William M. Troulliet, both of Bay St. Louis; two daughters, Rose Wingenter and Linda Troulliet, both of New Orleans; a brother, Nashe Troulliet of New Orleans; five sisters, Rita Landry of New Orleans, Alberta Kline of Avondale, La., and Laura Gonzales of Pass Christian, Ms. Evelyn Hall of Algiers, La. and Lettie Teresa Robinson of Westwego, La.; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Visitation was Wednesday at Riemann Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis, followed by services at Riemann Funeral Home chapel. A graveside service was conducted at Greenwood Cemetery in New Orleans.

JAMES L. WILLIAMSON

James L. Williamson, 72, of Pass Christian, died Friday, Oct. 20, 1995, in Gulfport.

Mr. Williamson was a native of Chicago. He was a resident of the Coast for 13 years. He was a retired security officer for the DuPont Corporation and served in the Army during World War II.

Survivors include his wife, Judith Lipke of Pass Christian; three sons, Kelly Ray Lipke of Gulfport, Craig Lipke and Corey Lipke, both of California; six daughters, Christine Taylor of Gulfport, Jennifer Neal of Woolmarket, Stacey Pavolini and Stacey Williamson, both of Pass Christian, Tara Williamson and Becky Woerz, both of California; and 11 grandchildren.

A memorial service was conducted Sunday evening at Riemann Memorial Funeral Home in Gulfport.

SUPERVISOR • DIST. 4
☒ TOM WILLIAMS
☐ STEVEN SEYMOUR

To All My Good Friends and Supporters:
I fought for your privilege and your right to cast YOUR VOTE and to have them counted properly. I now ask you to continue to support my efforts and my candidacy for District 4 Supervisor for Hancock County. My opponent, Steven Seymour, is a nice young man, whom I feel lacks the necessary experiences in life to accept the challenges that the Board of Supervisors requires.

We can no longer stand by and accept an incumbent's son, or any other family member, to succeed him because he feels he owns his political office. I honestly think the people of District 4 are ready to make a change in Hancock County.

I will continue to fight for what is right and equal for ALL Hancock Countians.

PLEASE elect me to represent all of you in District 4. You will see improvements in your roads, ditches and other critical areas, such as the Hancock County Volunteer Fire Department and the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, which have been neglected over the past eight years by the present Supervisor. I need YOUR help to win this fight! Your vote and support will be GREATLY appreciated.

NASA data used to assess Hurricane Opal damage

Before Hurricane Opal even made landfall in Pensacola, Fla., NASA and Gulf of Mexico Program personnel at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center (SSC) were planning to help assess the area's potential damage.

Through its partnership with the Gulf of Mexico Program, NASA initiated a flyover by its ER-2 plane stationed at Ames Research Center in California to take remotely sensed images of the site.

The data collected have the potential to assist the 17 other Gulf of Mexico Program partners in their cleanup and rebuilding efforts and environmental impact assessments. These include federal agencies and state partners from Alabama and Florida. The flyover was funded by NASA's Mission to Planet Earth airborne science program.

The Gulf of Mexico Program, headquartered at SSC, is an intergovernmental effort to develop a comprehensive management plan for future protection of the Gulf environment. The program is a partnership among Gulf states and public and private agencies designed to prevent duplication, improve coordination and provide a comprehensive network for sharing Gulf of Mexico environmental information and data.

The partners recently signed a participation agreement to reinforce the federal commitment to this partnership.

"One role of the Gulf of Mexico Program is to coordinate data and information on the environmental health and economic sustainability of the Gulf of Mexico," said Gene Meier of the Environmental Protection Agency's office of research and development, liaison to the Gulf of Mexico Program.

The coordinator of the flyover was NASA's Dr. Ramona Peltier Travis with the Projects and Technology Applications Directorate at Stennis Space Center, who also serves as NASA's Gulf of Mexico Program manager.

"One thing NASA brings to the table as a partner is its remote sensing technology," Travis said. "This was an excellent opportunity not only for NASA to offer its capabilities, but also to exhibit the importance of the Gulf of Mexico Program partnerships. We would not have offered to fly this mission if the other partners had not expressed a need for the data."

Knowing the ER-2 was in Austin, Texas, Travis submitted a request for the plane to collect data over the coastal areas of Alabama and Florida affected by Opal. Data collected for the Gulf of Mexico Program partners were aerial photographs and MODIS Airborne Simulator digital images.

The plane was able to acquire the essential data in less than 48 hours after Opal made landfall. Quick turnaround allowed many of the partners to acquire timely information, which will assist in their response efforts.

Prior to Opal, the program's partners had already scheduled to meet in Florida. They kept the Oct. 19 and 20 meetings to distribute the data among the groups and decide how each could utilize the data. The meetings also offered partners a chance to walk through their areas of interest, compare the date to the actual damage and construct a plan.

"NASA's contribution of these photos through the Gulf of Mexico Program and their associated use by various Gulf customers is a wonderful example of how government can pool resources to better serve the public," said Allan Antley, acting director of the Gulf of Mexico Program office at SSC.

"The Gulf program has must begun to explore its role in response to disasters in the Gulf from an environmental perspective, and this is one of our first examples."

Stennis Space Center is NASA's primary center for testing and flight certifying Space Shuttle Main Engines. Because of its important role in engine testing for more than three decades, Stennis Space Center has been designated NASA's Center of Excellence for large propulsion systems testing. As one of 10 NASA field centers in the United States, Stennis Space Center has evolved into a multiagency, multidisciplinary center for federal, state, academic and private organizations engaged in space, oceans, environmental programs and the national defense. In addition to NASA, there are 21 other federal and state agencies located at SSC.

MILITARY MENTIONS

AIRMAN ROUSE

Air Force Airman Michael R. Rouse was graduated from basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

During the six weeks of training, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization, and customs and received special training in human relations.

Rouse is the son of Iris E. Coats of Pass Christian. He graduated in 1993 from Harrison Central High School.

AIRMAN ACOSTA

Charles R. Acosta has been specially identified for early promotion to senior airman in the U.S. Air Force.

The airman was awarded the new rating ahead of other Air Force members by a "below-the-zone" promotion board which considered job performance, military knowledge, bearing, and self-improvement efforts.

Acosta is an armament systems apprentice at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, Tucson, Ariz.

He is the son of Ann Kieff of Bay St. Louis.

The airman is a 1992 graduate of Chalmette High School, La.

SGT KREMENTZ

Marine Staff Sgt. Artie J. Krementz, son of Artie J. Krementz Sr. and Charmaine Beverung, both of Bay St. Louis, has departed for a six-month overseas deployment while serving with the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit (26th MEU) embarked aboard the ships of the USS Wasp Amphibious Ready Group (ARG).

The 1982 graduate of Bay High School joined the Marine Corps in March, 1982.

Ingalls to christen 'Milius'

DDG 69, the ninth DDG 51 Class Aegis guided missile destroyer to be built by Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton Industries in Pascagoula, will be christened "Milius" in ceremonies at Ingalls on Oct. 28. Serving as ship's sponsor will be Annette Milius, daughter of the ship's namesake, Navy Pilot Captain Paul L. Milius (1928-1968), who was lost in action over Laos in 1968. The public is invited to attend DDG 69's christening, which begins at 11 a.m. The ceremony will be held at Ingalls' facilities on the west bank of the Pascagoula River. (Ingalls Shipbuilding photo)

Hillyer House presents "Shrimp Boats" watercolors by Jennifer Faust of Alabama; "Sealife" impressions in clay pottery by Matt Brabham of Florida; handblown glass cobalt oil candles by Roger Vines of Washington; gold plate museum reproduction jewelry collection by Michael Golan of New York.

Collections are on display and for sale, 10-5 Monday-Saturday, 12-5 Sunday. Hillyer House is located 207 East Scenic Drive, Pass Christian, MS 39571. Call (601) 452-4810 for details.

Art exhibit

The Ocean Springs Art Association 24th Annual Members Fine Art Exhibit will run through Nov. 12 at the Ocean Springs Community Center on Washington Avenue.

More than 20 works of art — painting and sculpture — will be on display. The exhibit is open to the public. Entrance is free daily 10-5, except for election day.

Pottery

"Peter Anderson: A Potter's Legacy" will be on display at the Walter Anderson Museum of Art through Dec. 3. This exhibit features a collection of bowls, vases, plates and figurines from Shearwater Pottery, including the works of Peter Anderson and three other generations of the Anderson family. Watercolors, block prints and woodcarvings made by Walter Anderson also are on display.

Sculpture exhibit

The C. W. Woods Art Gallery at USM in Hattiesburg is hosting a sculpture exhibition featuring the works of Casey Downing Jr. until Oct. 25.

The exhibit is free and open to the public. Gallery hours are Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. For information, call (601) 266-5200.

Submissions to Artin' About should be sent to The Sea Coast Echo, P.O. Box 2009, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520. Notices will be edited and published on a space-available basis.

Talent program

Five Coast Episcopal Middle School seventh graders were selected for the Duke University Talent Identification Program, from left, Meg Newman, James Selig, Kristin Brownlee, John Waterman and Jacob Davis. Seventh graders in 16 states who scored in the top three percent on the Stanford Achievement Test, California Achievement Test, or other standard ability or aptitude test are chosen to participate in the program. These students will take either the SAT or ACT in January and are eligible to participate in a variety of classes and programs for gifted students.

PRC mechanics program receives certification

Automotive mechanic students at Pearl River Community College can now work with the most technologically advanced equipment in a nationally certified program.

All areas of the course meet strict industry standards required for Automotive Service Excellence Master certification. This is the highest level of achievement that the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) recognizes.

PRCC is one of four community colleges statewide and the only one in south Mississippi to have an ASE certified auto mechanics program, according to Don Welsh, PRCC's vocational-technical director.

As a result, the General Motors Corporation in New Orleans donated three new automobiles valued at $70,000 to PRCC for training purposes.

The college received 1995 models of a Chevy Lumina LS, an Olds Cutlass Ciera SL Royal and a Chevy S-1500 king cab sport pickup truck.

"When mechanics go to work for automotive dealers, they put them to work directly on the vehicles," said Roy Jones, a 41-year veteran instructor of PRCC's auto mechanics program.

"The ASE certification and receiving these vehicles gives us the latest technology in providing the most advanced hands-on training for our students," said Welsh.

PRCC met certification in all eight ASE areas: brakes, electrical/electronic systems, engine performance, suspension and steering, engine repair, heating and air conditioning, manual drive train and axles.

PRCC's program underwent two separate site visits of the auto shop. Members of the auto mechanics Craft Committee conducted a self-evaluation for the program as a preliminary check before the official visit.

Craft committees are made up of business and industry representatives who advise PRCC's vocational-technical departments to help enhance the educational and training programs.

The team that conducted the official NATEF site-evaluation consisted of a team leader from NATEF, Bennie Dickerson of Bill Garrett's Auto-Plex in Picayune; Richard Byrd, auto mechanic instructor for the Hancock County Vo-Tech Center in Bay St. Louis; and Troy Spinks, owner of Spinks Tire Center in Picayune.

November is Endangered Species Month at Gulf Islands Seashore

Are bald eagles returning to Horn Island this winter? Did baby sea turtles hatch this year on barrier island beaches? During November, take a look at endangered species around the world, including those protected at Gulf Island National Seashore.

Saturday, Nov. 4: There are 500 endangered species in the United States, including the whooping crane, humpback whale and red wolf. Follow efforts to save cranes, whales and wolves from Florida to Alaska. Kids and adults will enjoy "Into the Wild" as teenage reporters follow scientists onto the sea and into the wilderness.

Sunday, Nov. 5: Imagine no eagles, pelicans or sea turtles living here on the Coast. These creatures facing extinction did find refuge on Horn, Petit Bois and Ship Island. At 2 p.m., see how they were brought back from the edge during "Recall of the Wild."

Saturday, Nov. 11: Like us, threatened animals need a place to live. For many of creatures on the Coast that means a healthy Gulf of Mexico. How is it doing? "Life on the Edge" takes a half-hour video look at the status of "America's Sea."

Sunday, Nov. 12: Illegal sale of animals parts is big business in many countries. Rare creatures, including rhinos, walrus and tigers, all become ingredients in folk medicine, jewelry and trinkets.

"World Wildlife Trade" looks at collections of stuffed animals, body parts, and medicine boxes seized at our country's borders. Join park rangers at 2 p.m. as they uncreate these symbols of a sad and dangerous business.

Saturday, Nov. 18: Endangered wildlife is a world-wide problem, including places not far from folks living here on the Coast. "You Can't Grow Home Again!" looks at the disappearing rain forest across the Gulf of Mexico from us. It's a special 3-2-1 Contact video for kids and adults from the makers of Sesame Street.

Sunday, Nov. 19: All five Gulf of Mexico sea turtles are considered on list for possible extinction. Is there still "Time for Turtles?" Look at these ancient creatures of the sea, how they've survived millions of years, and what's causing their demise. Find out about sea turtles and how a National Park can help at 2 p.m.

Saturday, Nov. 25: Will wolves return to the lower 48 states?

"Frontrunner" takes a look at work across the country to bring back the creature Native-Americans respected and pioneers feared. See this video in the Visitor Center at 2 p.m.

Sunday, Nov. 26: In 1970 about a dozen red wolves still lived on the planet earth. Though once common across the southeastern U.S., they were hunted, trapped and poisoned to almost non-existence.

In 1989 a pair was dropped off on Horn Island with hopes these red ghosts could return to southern forests. Discover how they're doing six year later during "Red Wolves."

The entrance to the Davis Bayou and the William M. Colmer Visitor Center is off Hwy. 90 East in Ocean Springs. For information call (601) 875-9057.

President

Legendary Ladies of Rock and Roll

The President Casino will feature a series of concerts by the "Legendary Ladies of Rock and Roll" beginning with Mary Wilson and the Supremes Nov. 3 and 4 followed by Martha Reeves and the Vandellas Nov. 24 and 25. An original member of the premiere Motown "Girl Group," the Supremes, Mary Wilson has spent her life in the entertainment field. Famous for such hits as "Baby Love," "Come See About Me," "Stop! In The Name of Love," "You Keep Me Hangin' On," "Up the Ladder to the Roof" and more, the Supremes have stayed a legend in the music industry for four decades. In addition to performing a life-long desire to write a book led to Wilson writing her best-selling autobiography, Dreamgirl... My Life as a Supreme. Dreamgirl spent weeks on the best-seller list, received rave reviews, and with over 500,000 copies in print is the most successful autobiography in music book publishing history. Wilson has also appeared on stage, in feature films and on television. Like Mary Wilson and the Supremes, Martha Reeves and the Vandellas made history in the 1960s as one of the most popular and commercially successful artists on the Motown label.

Reeves holds the distinction of inspiring the first pairing of the legendary Holland-Dozier-Holland writing team when they teamed, for the first time, to write Reeves' first hit, "I'll Have to Let Him Go." More hits in the form of "Heat Wave," "Dancing in the Street," "Nowhere to Run," and "Jimmy Mack" quickly followed. After four decades of performing, Martha Reeves and the Vandellas still pack houses with their performances. The President Casino is permanently moored in the marina of the Broadwater Beach Resort. The President boasts the most generous gaming odds and loosest slots on the Coast. Each group will perform two shows nightly in the Lagniappe Lounge of The President Casino at 8 and 10:30 p.m. Admission to all shows is free.

October 29: Third Annual Halloween Blackjack Tourney
With more than $20,000 in prizes, the Isle of Capri Casino's third annual Halloween Blackjack Tournament is definitely packed with more treats than tricks. To reserve your seat, register at the main casino cage any time before tournament day. Entry fee is $100, and players receive $300 in casino chips to start the round. Each round consists of 30 hands. Minimum bet is $5, and maximum bet is $300. After 30 hands, players with the highest chip amounts from each table will advance to the semi-final round at 5 p.m. There will be a continental breakfast and reading of the rules at 10 a.m. in the Isle's new hotel. All participants' names will be entered in a drawing for a free entry for one round in the tournament. Registration begins immediately following the reception at 11 a.m. First round starts at 1 p.m. The prize pool, which is 100% of entry fees, will feature great prizes for the top seven winners, including $10,000 and a weekend for two to the Isle of Capri Casino Crowne Plaza Resort for first place, $5,000 and a genuine Isle of Capri watch for the second place winner and $2,500 and an Isle watch for third. Halloween night: Skaraoke and Elvira Look-a-Like Contests
Isle guests will howl at the moon and croon their favorite fright-night tunes during Skaraoke — the Halloween version of Karaoke — from 7-8 p.m. in the Caribbean Cove. But the ghoulish good time doesn't end until all Elvira look-alikes have their night in the moonlight. The fourth annual Coors Light Elvira Look-a-Like contest will begin at 8 p.m., featuring finalists from across the Coast showing their dark side. Wednesday-Sunday: Island Fever
Catch the fever at the Isle of Capri Casino Crowne Plaza Resort. The Isle recently introduced Island Fever — a live Caribbean review fun for the entire family — featuring the hottest dancers and singers on the Coast. The Isle's new entertainment area is located in the atrium behind the Caribbean Cove bar. The show runs at 3, 8 and 10 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday, and on Friday and Saturday at 3, 7, 9 and 11 p.m. And, it's free.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

As I write this, I am munching on thin slices of tender and succulent roast beef—but, wait a minute before you accuse me of either robbing a meat counter or of squandering the food budget, please!

This snack is from slow-oven-roasted brisket of beef, although I have at times roasted even chuck cuts this way with good results. It's quite tasty if you cook this my way—"slow and easy does it all the time," to quote an old, old song.

It's also an easy, lazy way of cooking, with relatively little effort on the part of the cook. I have cooked even large, large round roasts of beef for 24 hours this way, when there were more feet under the table at meals than nowadays, or else a party in the offing.

If you cook your roast much above 300 degrees, you'll only toughen these cuts, whereas low temperature cooking will make them more tender. You won't believe how good these cuts can be until you've cooked them at 150 degrees or a bit more, if you prefer, for some time.

Of course, you must first "cook the roast" for an hour at 250 degrees, to prevent bacteria problems which might otherwise arise from slow cooking. Then, lower the heat and proceed. I cook my roasts in an open roasting pan, basting from time to time with the juices when I think about it; often surrounded by halved potatoes, onions and carrots—the roast, not I!

Just remember that your roast will take a few hours or more longer to cook at the lower temperature, of course, and it also depends on the degree of "doneness" you wish. And, if you can learn to like your meats a little less than well done, you'll find them more tasty and tender, as even the finest steak or roast will toughen up if overcooked, in my opinion. Here's:

Slow cooked beef roast

SLOW COOKED BEEF ROAST

4 to 5 lb. cut of beef, such as brisket
Burgundy wine as desired
Olive oil as desired
Chopped garlic, onion to suit your taste
Pepper, hot pepper sauce the same

Several potatoes, halved
4 to 5 carrots, whole or halved

Beforehand, I brush the roast well with olive oil and the red wine (or I marinate the roast in oil and wine for a few hours. Next, I brown the meat well in a heavy skillet or pan, then transfer to my open roasting pan and cook at 250 degrees for an hour.

Then I turn the heat down to 150 or so degrees, and let the roast all but cook itself while I go about my business for a few or several hours, depending upon the size of the roast, of course. I take a look at the roast from time to time, and baste with the juices, or a little wine or water as necessary.

And, hour or so before I think it'll be ready, I place the vegetables around it in the roasting pan, basting them a few times as well—it takes only a few extra flicks of the spoon.

Incidentally, I never salt my roasts until toward the end of the cooking time—but I do like those splashes of hot pepper sauce! A good rule of thumb, whatever the size of your roast: approximately an hour and a half per pound at 150 degrees, although you may have to adjust a bit until you arrive at your own formula.

Happy cooking—and hope the hurricane has stayed away by the time you read this!

Herbs can spice up vegetable gardens

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Herbs always have been favorites with gardeners. They provide color, form, scent and taste, and many have reputed medicinal values. For ages, gardeners have chosen plants for their culinary and medicinal qualities and have grown them just outside the kitchen door.

Today's kitchen garden may end up being some distance from the kitchen door due to shading, decks, sidewalks and other obstacles, but if you have an area just outside your kitchen door, so much the better. Nothing can match the taste and aroma of fresh-picked herbs, no matter how they are used.

Just what is an herb? In its broadest sense, an herb is any plant grown for its aroma, taste or reputed medicinal value.

While most herbs are herbaceous, there are some woody plants such as rosemary, thyme, lavender and bay that are considered herbs.

What are the most popular herbs being grown today? Kathy Sabastian, executive director of The International Herb Association, said chives, basil, rosemary, lemon verbena, sage, oregano, sweet marjoram, parsley, French tarragon and thyme make up today's top 10 herbs.

Mississippi's list probably would include garlic and mints and leave out the lemon verbena and French tarragon.

Generally herbs are relatively easy to grow. Provided the soil is well drained, many herbs grow where regular flowering bedding plants won't. While there are a few herbs that favor some shade (mints), most prefer full sunlight. Water is important during establishment, but once established most herbs are surprisingly tolerant of drier conditions. Vegetable gardens are natural places to grow herbs.

One or two plants per herb type will probably be adequate for most families. For use in their fresh state, harvest herb leaves when the plant has reached a relatively mature stage when the harvesting of some leaves won't damage its growth.

For most herbs, harvesting should be done before the plants flower, but herb flowers are edible and make tasty and attractive additions to salads. If flower buds are seen you can pinch them back so that the plant continues to produce foliage instead of flowers.

Herb purists recommend harvesting in late morning, after the dew has dried but before the hot sun has dried any of the oils in the leaves or caused the plants to wilt a little. Thoroughly wash and dry the leaves before chopping them for use in recipes.

Chopping releases the flavorful oils in the leaves.

Fresh herbs have a lot more flavor than dried herbs, so less is needed in a recipe that calls for dried herbs. A general rule of thumb is to use one-half the amount called for in a recipe, unless it specifies using a certain amount of a fresh herb.

Gardeners can preserve herbs in several ways, from drying by various methods, to chopping and freezing them with water in ice cube trays. A common method of drying herbs is to cut the stems, and loosely tie them in small bundles. Then hang them upside down to dry in a warm, dry place that is out of bright light.

Some people prefer covering the bundles with a paper bag before hanging them. The bag helps absorb moisture without absorbing the natural oils and also keeps dust from the stems.

The method of preservation that retains a flavor as close to fresh as you can get is to blend 2 cups of leaves with 1/2 cup of vegetable oil.

Olive oil can be used, but will add its own flavor. Freeze the herb-oil blends in small quantities and use them to flavor stews, soups, gravies, sauces and vegetables.

This article is based on information provided by the National Garden Bureau.

lowed, and generally by being interested in what goes on in their community," Sugg said. He concluded, "They are doing for themselves what many people expect from a municipal government. Grass roots movements like this should be encouraged and they should not be saddled by a government that has a long history of irresponsible spending."

Earlier this week, the Echo found Roux seated behind his kitchen table in his comfortable home in Pass Christian. The telephone rang incessantly. Residents of the Isles and Henderson Point call to thank him for his tireless efforts. Others call from across the state to get Roux's advice on how they can fight pending annexation.

Roux's daughter, Dera Babbin is home, and is helping to care for Roux's wife, Eleanor who is terminally ill with cancer. A nurse with the local Hospice comes to check on her too, as a housekeeper goes about her chores in another part of the Roux household. With all this swirling around him, Roux remains a focused person. Roux's great grandfather, the Marquis Peter Roux de la Beaume came to the pristine shores of Henderson Point from France in 1830, and Roux has been a lifelong resident of the area.

He and his family survived Hurricanes Betsy and Camille, and he is ready to face an even bigger challenge.

"The local battle has been won, but the war is not over, Roux warns."

Roux said he won't rest until voters in Mississippi pass a statewide amendment to the constitution.

The proposed measure known as "Initiative Measure No. 6," would require prior approval of a majority of electors in the proposed annexation area before a municipality could annex the territory.

"The state's archaic method for annexation is 'unfair and undemocratic,' Roux explains. 'All a city has to do is pass an ordinance defining the territory it wants to annex. No public hearings are required. The city merely files the petition in Chancery Court to ratify the ordinance.'

"If there is no opposition or no one files a counter-suit, the ordinance is ratified by a Chancery Court Judge, and the annexation becomes effective 10 days after the order is signed."

Once annexed, Roux said the city usually provides immediate police and fire protection, but legally can take up to five years to provide sewerage, water, and drainage services to the newly incorporated area.

"In essence, the law allows any bankrupt city to expand its tax base by merely passing an ordinance defining the territory it desires to annex," said Roux. "And, history has shown, the people who have been annexed pay taxes for years before they see any improvements."

"And, the annexed victims also become responsible for all accumulated city debts, which they had no part in making, and must help retire these debts through future taxation," Roux adds.

As an example, he cited Pass Christian's 1985 annexation of Timber Ridge and all territory north of the city to Bayou Portage.

"Originally, the city included us in the petition, but I went door-to-door informing the people," Roux said.

The city eventually dropped the Point and the Isles from its annexation petition, but Roux takes some credit for helping to defeat Mayor Gordon Bishop and At-Large Adelman Fred Kohl, who spearheaded the plan.

Roux blames Mayor Ted Lawyer (who resigned last August in the middle of a second term due to failing health) for leading the latest drive in 1991 to annex the Point and the Isles.

"It came out in court, that this mayor had purchased huge backhoes, bulldozers, and a $60,000 street sweeper. The city was virtually bankrupt and he wanted to gobble up some more land so he could expand his tax base, and spend more," Roux charged.

Roux and his civic organization also got the Harrison County Board of Supervisors to go on record 4-0 against the annexation. The District Supervisor, David Larosa, abstained in the voting.

Roux said he has been getting calls from Picayune, Jackson, and "about 13 other areas from across the state where annexation petitions have been filed. 'They all want to know our secret,' Roux said.

"It's no secret. You have to stick to it, get all the facts, be persistent," he advised.

Roux said the Freedom of Information Act allows citizens access to city spending "or irresponsible spending, for that matter."

"Get their books. Show they're bankrupt because, most of the time, that's why they want to grab more land. Keep your people fired up," Roux said. He intends to continue the fight to get the Initiative Measure on the statewide ballot for the 1997 general elections.

Roux blames the Mississippi Municipal Association, composed of Mayors and Aldermen or Councilmen for keeping the proposal off the 1996 general ballot.

He explained that the constitutional amendment required 85,500 signatures statewide, including 13,500 from each of the state's five Congressional districts.

"We had already collected over 65,000 signatures, but when this initiative began, the MMA filed suit in Circuit Court trying to keep the initiative from being circulated. They contended some of the wording should be changed, and the Circuit Judge rewrote it and changed exactly five words."

"But the delaying tactic worked, and we lost three months time. All the previous signatures had to be tossed out too, and we had to begin circulating the petition all over again with the new wording."

He said latest polls show the Initiative Measure No. 6 "would pass by a 2 to 1 margin."

Roux is confident he'll collect the required signatures by April 5, 1996 in order to get the measure on the state's general ballot in 1997.

Roux estimates his Association has spent more than $80,000 in attorney fees and other expenses to defeat the annexation issue.

"This was money we wanted to use to build a Community Center, and another playground," Roux said. "But, it was money well spent, and if in the process, we have shown the way for other communities to wage their battle, we're happy about that too."

He says city estimates that the annexation fight has cost Pass Christian around $130,000 are "extremely low."

"By the time they add up attorney fees, consulting fees, and cost of court, Pass Christian citizens will learn that they'll be footing the bill for about $300,000 or more," Roux predicted.

"That's money that certainly could have been put to better use."

The civic association has waged other battles, and won too.

They led the cause to prevent Spectrum Gaming from locating a Casino at Henderson Point.

Spectrum withdrew the application in June of 1992, and the Mississippi Gaming Commission has ruled the proposed site was "unsuitable" for a casino.

There's another local battle brewing too, and you can be sure that Roux is marshalling his forces.

The State Highway Department has federal funds to correct the dangerous curve in Highway 90, and build a new bridge over Bay View, the main artery leading into the Isles and Henderson Point.

"We're asking them, and our legislative representatives to change the design of the overpass to extend over Bay View," Roux said. "If that can't be done, we want a signal light on Highway 90, and new access roads to provide us a safer ingress and egress."

Roux said over the last eight years, 32 people have been killed at the dangerous intersection.

The state is in the process of acquiring rights-of-way before actual construction begins, so Roux said there is time to change design plans.

"He's already on your side - now put him in your office!"

running. It was believed the suspect, who recently transferred in from a school in California, disappeared into the woods behind the school, Tisdale said.

He said the student's parents have been notified.

Under school policy, he may be expelled for up to one calendar year, Tisdale said. The student will be entitled to a discipline hearing, and then he will be allowed to appear before the full school board.

"Usually the student is not permitted to return," Tisdale said.

Bay St. Louis Police Chief Frank McNeil said he could not release any further information.

If the student is expelled, he may be the third Bay High student expelled already this school year. Recently, the discipline committee recommended the expulsion of two students on handgun violations, Tisdale said. The two are awaiting a final ruling from the school board, he added.

Tisdale said the students were walking to school when they allegedly hid a handgun in a nearby vacant lot. A neighbor had apparently seen the students hide the gun and notified police.

Bay St. Louis police questioned the students at school, and they led officers to the gun, Tisdale said.

Tisdale said the incident was the first time a teacher had been threatened in his three-plus years in the district.

"We've been fortunate," he said. "We take all of the precautions that you can take."

"I don't believe more security would have made a difference."

College Football Highlights

For Oct. 28

No doubt about it, the Big Eight has been the conference of big games recently, and this Saturday is no exception. In one crucial matchup, Nebraska visits Colorado, looking for its fourth straight win over the Buffaloes since they played to a 19-19 tie in 1991.

Last year in Lincoln, Neb., the Huskers won a game that was never close, 24-7. Nebraska's offensive line dominated Colorado's defensive line, and the Huskers' defense was overpowering as well: Nebraska led 24-0 before the Buffaloes crossed midfield for the second time. We're feeling charitable toward the Buffaloes this week, so we predict they'll stay within a touchdown.

And Manhattan, Kan., may be as crowded and as raucous as the other Manhattan Saturday afternoon when the Kansas Jayhawks take on the Kansas State Wildcats. The Jayhawks pulled off one of the biggest upsets of the season three weeks ago when they stunned Colorado, but we still like K-State by nine points in this one.

In '94 the Wildcats won 21-13 in Kansas's Memorial Stadium, their first win in Lawrence since '69. The K-State defense held the nation's second-ranked rushing team to only 70 yards on the ground, and this year the Wildcat defense looks even more formidable. They've got a long way to go to even this series, though, which began in 1902 and stands at 61-26-5 in favor of Kansas.

In the Big Ten, Ohio State hosts Iowa in a battle of two of the nation's most prolific offenses. We think only one—the Buckeyes—will be prolific this week.

In Champaign, Ill., meanwhile, Northwestern should manage to knock off Illinois for the first time in three years. The Wildcat team that the Illini held to 37 yards rushing in a 28-7 win last year has been replaced by a fired-up contender for the conference title.

If the Arkansas Razorbacks can blunt Auburn's attack, they may stay close in their Southeastern Conference West confrontation in Little Rock, Ark. The Tigers have run and passed at will so far, and they no doubt remember last year's Arkansas game, which they trailed 14-10 in the fourth quarter before tailback Stephen Davis exploded for three TD's and the Tigers won 31-14. Auburn may take it to the Razorbacks earlier this year.

In the West, can Washington stop Southern California's running game? Nope. We think this one will go the way of their '94 matchup, when USC tailbacks Delon Washington and Shawn Walters combined for 200 yards against the Huskies in a 24-17 Trojan win. On Saturday USC will win by 12.

NFL Forecast for Sunday and Monday Oct. 29-30

Cleveland, 26—Cincinnati, 24
(Sunday) The Browns have won five in a row from the Bengals since 1992—28-20 and 37-13 last year. This season Cincinnati's offense has been more productive than Cleveland's, so this should be close.

Dallas, 32—Atlanta, 20

We'd predict an upset here if it weren't for the Falcons' so-so defense, which won't help them against the Cowboys' powerhouse scoring machine. Atlanta won their last matchup in '93, 27-14.

Green Bay, 27—Detroit, 23

Two weeks ago the Packers raced out to a 20-0 lead over the Lions and hung on to win 30-21. According to the last two seasons' pattern, it's now Detroit's turn, but G.B. needs a victory more.

Indianapolis, 28—N.Y. Jets, 14

In a game that seemed to demoralize the Jets, the Colts came from 21 points down in Week Two to win in OT on Mike Coffey's 52-yard field goal, 27-24. Indianapolis has only improved since then.

Miami, 30—Buffalo, 25

A big game? The Bills' pride—and the motivation that might propel them back to the Super Bowl—is at stake. They've won three straight against Miami, but Buffalo is struggling offensively.

New England, 22—Carolina, 13

Here's a possible game of the week, tough few may be watching it. The Panthers will be loose, while the Patriots, desperate to salvage some self-respect, badly need a breakout performance.

Pittsburgh, 31—Jacksonville, 14

The Jaguars stunned the Steelers three weeks ago, 20-16, and they did it with defense, Pittsburgh's strength. So—speaking of pride—we wouldn't want to play for Jacksonville in this game.

St. Louis, 29—Philadelphia, 16

The Rams are coming off tough, character-building battles with the Falcons and 49ers, while the Eagles barely survived the Saints, Redskins and Giants. These two teams haven't met since '90.

San Francisco, 36—New Orleans, 17

Looking like anything but Super Bowl champs, the penalty-turnover-and-sack-plagued 49ers were lucky to escape with a 24-22 win over the Saints in Week One. They won't play that badly again.

Seattle, 20—Arizona, 17

Though the Seahawks have hosted three of the four games they've played against the Cardinals, they're 0 for 4 since they first met in '76. This time Seattle should have enough offense to win.

Tampa Bay, 24—Houston, 14

If the Buccaneers hope to win this game—and continue to contend in the NFC Central—they'll need to generate more offense. The last time these teams faced off, in '89, the Oilers won 20-17.

Washington, 23—N.Y. Giants, 21

Last year the Giants left the Redskins behind in the NFC East, but their games were still close—31-23 and 21-19, both N.Y. wins. This year they're a better match, but Washington was the edge.

Minnesota, 28—Chicago, 20

(Monday) Erik Kramer threw three TD passes to lead the Bears over the Vikings, 31-14, eight weeks ago. But the Bears are seldom Monday-night winners, and they haven't beaten Minnesota twice since '91.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1995-9B

BETWEEN THE LINES

By Richard Meek

In a franchise with more lows than the Weather Channel, none could equal the debacle last Sunday afternoon when the expansion Carolina Cougars thoroughly embarrassed the New Orleans Saints.

New Orleans, which has been in the league 30 years, and has had the same coach for one-third of its existence, was out-hustled, outcoached and dominated by a team playing only its seventh game. The Cougars did not win by a fluke, they deserved it because they were the better team. What a sad indictment of the Saints.

The humiliation leveled by Carolina and its marauders of ex-Saints sealed the fate of New Orleans coach Jim Mora. If there was even a shred of doubt that he would be fired after this season, and I don't think there was, the degradation of the Carolina loss leaves owner Tom Benson no choice but to release Mora, a veteran of 10 fall campaigns and the winningest coach in New Orleans history.

Adding to the ignominy is that the Saints were done in by players who as recently as last year were playing for Mora. But for a variety of reasons, the most telling being a lack of direction among the administration, those same players were allowed or told to go elsewhere.

The afternoon's defining moment came when former Saint linebacker Sam Mills, still better than any current Saint linebacker, deflected a pass that fell into the hands of Cougar defensive back Brett Maxie, another ex-Saint. In fact, Maxie intercepted two of Jim Everett's passes.

Even the Cougar coaching staff is lined with guys who formerly picked up their paychecks in New Orleans, beginning with head coach Dom Capers. How sweet the victory had to be for him.

And what a bitter blow to New Orleans.

Not so long ago, this was a franchise ranked one of the league's finest. Despite the Saints' playoff futility, the uniqueness of the Dome Patrol, the Great Dane and the Benson Boogie made New Orleans one of the league's darlings. The nightmare of the John Mecom era finally was eradicated.

But once again, the franchise lies in a scrap heap, the target of every NFL bully.

Interestingly, Mora blasted the media when the Saints pre-season traveling circus made its annual stop in Waveland. Mora said the media did not know what it was talking about when it criticized the organization for allowing several of the Saints key personnel to depart.

One has to ask Mora now if fans should now believe him or the media when speculating on his job security.

Sources inside the organization say Benson realizes the mistake he made by attempting to have three people in charge, which, of course, left no one in charge. Look for him to clean house.

Reports say he recently contacted former Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson about coming to the Crescent City, and that Johnson turned Benson down. There can only be two reasons.

The first is that Benson did not offer Johnson what he needs: total control. Benson may have offered Johnson the coaching job but he assured he did not offer him control of the entire football operation.

Johnson will go nowhere without that arrangement.

The only other possible reason is that Johnson wants to be available if Miami coach Don Shula retires. Johnson covets the Dolphin job, and Miami owner Wayne Herzaga covets Johnson. But how does an owner fire perhaps the greatest coach in NFL history?

Shula knows he controls his own destiny, and he is not showing his hand. If indeed he stays, Johnson may keep his cushy gig on Fox, or bolt for an owner that will meet his demands.

Benson should have been that owner. Johnson's magnanimous personality is a perfect match for a city that supports its team like no other. He would enjoy a honeymoon that may never end.

When Benson rescued the team from an impending move to Jacksonville, he said he was committed to bring a winning team to the city. He took the necessary steps by hiring Jim Finks as general manager and Mora as coach. Success quickly followed.

A new Saints low

But in the past few years, Benson, Mora and the entire staff has been lethargic in their approach. Mediocrity has been accepted, but unchallenged mediocrity in any business will eventually lead to failure. The result is this season.

Mora is an outstanding coach who has lost his trademark intensity. The fire of his famous "woulda, coulda, shoulda" speech is but a dim memory. So may Saints fans, if changes are not forthcoming.

Ole Miss Homecoming

A parade through Oxford, the induction of five distinguished individuals into the Alumni Association's Hall of Fame and a gridiron challenge against Vanderbilt University fill this year's slate of University of Mississippi Homecoming activities Oct. 27-28.

At 3:30 p.m. Oct. 27, the public is invited to the School of Education auditorium for the induction of 1995 Hall of Fame recipients Reuben V. Anderson and Blair E. Batson of Jackson, David W. Arnold of Yazoo City, Evelyn Gandy of Hattiesburg and Dan S. Wilford of Sugar Land, Texas. A reception will follow at Memory House.

A popular feature will be the third annual homecoming parade, also slated for Oct. 27. The parade is set to begin at 5:30 p.m. at the School of Education and travel to Oxford's Square. Floats decorated in accordance with the homecoming theme — "Ole Miss and Oxford: Red and Blue Country" — will be led by grand marshals Dr. Robert Khayat, Ole Miss chancellor;

John Leslie, Oxford mayor; and Nicole Stofer, Ole Miss student body president.

The public is invited to join the homecoming spirit by donning red and blue colors during the weekend. Oxford homeowners and merchants also are participating with spirited decorations.

On Oct. 28, the Grove will open to the public at 7 a.m. Beginning at 8:30 a.m., stickers, fans, posters and other souvenirs will be given away at the Alumni Association Hospitality Tent, located near the outdoor stage in the Grove. The tent, with its message board and cellular telephone, also serves as a place to meet friends and family or to reunite with classmates.

The Athletic Department will have golf cart transportation available for the disabled upon request; arrangements for before or after the game can be made by calling (601) 23-7167.

For information about homecoming activities, call (601) 232-7375.

PRCC to celebrate homecoming

Pearl River Community College will celebrate homecoming Saturday, beginning with class reunions and tours of the campus at 9 a.m. and concluding with a Wildcat football game at 2:30 p.m.

"It's a full day of exciting activities," said Donna Wilson, executive director of Alumni Affairs.

Reunion classes include the years of 1934-1936, 1939-1942, 1953-1955, 1945, 1955, 1965, 1975, 1985 and 1995. Other reunions will include the River-Road show choir, the String of Pearls dance team, and Theta of Mississippi.

The alumni luncheon and annual meeting of the PRCC Alumni Association will begin at 11:30 a.m. in the cafeteria.

Receiving recognition at the luncheon and during halftime of the PRCC and Copiah-Lincoln football game will be Doug Mooney, 1995 PRCC Alumnus of the Year. Mooney is from Picayune.

Also featured will be three All-American inductees of the 1995 Sports Hall of Fame: 1987-89 Lady Wildcat basketball player Antrice McGill Eddy of Houston, Texas, and formerly of Picayune; 1968-69 Wildcat football player David Earl Johnson, of Poplarville; and 1961-62 football Wildcat Steve Regan of Columbia.

The American Legion Post 77

in Waveland will receive the Distinguished Service Award for contributing over $100,000 to PRCC's scholarship program. Richard Smith is this year's commander of the Post, succeeding Richard Bessey, last year's commander.

Along with homecoming activities is the ninth annual Old Fashion Day Arts & Crafts Show downtown at the Pearl River County Courthouse lawn. The Old Fashion Day starts at 8 a.m. and goes through 3 p.m.

The ninth annual PRCC Alumni Golf Tournament starts at 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 27, at the Hillsdale Golf Club located at Exit 35, Interstate 59, five miles north of Poplarville.

PRCC's newly renovated Crosby Hall will be open to view on Saturday. The bookstore, counseling center, nurses station, security office and grill will be open.

For information about homecoming activities, call the Alumni Office at 795-1183. Reservations are encouraged for the luncheon, however, tickets will be available at the door. Cost is $10 per person with net proceeds going toward a scholarship.

Cost of the golf tournament, a three-person scramble event, is $30 per person. For information on the golf tournament, call Larry Stanford at 795-1312.

Miss. State Homecoming

Mississippi State University will celebrate its 1995 Homecoming with a library open house and a country music concert.

On Friday, Oct. 27, a 6 p.m. pep rally will kick off festivities at the Amphitheater, followed by a 7:30 p.m. concert in Humphrey Coliseum. Country music artist Tim McGraw will headline the performance, which also features the trio of Black-Hawk and the 4 Runner quartet.

Tickets are $19 for the stands and $25 for the floor and may be ordered through the Mississippi State ticket office at 325-2126.

A Saturday, Oct. 28 open house at Mitchell Memorial Library will allow visitors to view the facility's nearly completed $14.9 million expansion and renovation. Retiring U.S. Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery (D-Miss.) will speak at the 10:30 a.m. event on the library's fourth floor.

For information on the 10:30 a.m.-noon open house, call Frances Coleman at 325-3062.

Gulf Coast homecoming

Wildcats eliminate Bears, 31-0

Pearl River Community College pushed its record to 6-2 in Summit with a 31-0 decision over the Southwest Bears.

Sophomore tailback Ken-shun Smith raced for 181 yards, two touchdowns and one two-point conversion to lead the Wildcats to their fourth South Division win of the year.

Antonio Carrillo kicked field goals from 28, 27 and 23 yards. Dexter Dean carried 10 times for 53 yards and one touchdown. Quarterback Jerel Posey ran the ball 12 times for 82 yards and completed four of seven passes for 66 yards.

The Pearl River defense limited the Bears offense to only two yards in the first half and 73 on the night.

The Wildcats picked up 23 first downs, rushed for 348 yards and totaled 423 yards for the game.

Carrillo gave the Wildcats a 6-0 lead with two field goals in the first half, and Smith rambled 15 yards for PRCC's first touchdown of the night. Posey then passed to Smith for a two-point conversion and a 14-0 halftime lead.

Carrillo added another field goal in the third and Smith scored from four yards. Dean scored from 13 yards in the fourth quarter.

It was Pearl River's 43rd victory over the Bears. The Wildcats have lost only nine times, with three games ending in ties.

The Wildcats will entertain the Co-Lin Wolves at homecoming Saturday in a 2:30 p.m. game.

Senior Series golf returns to Gulfport

The Senior Series by Global Sport, a golf tour for professionals age 50 and over, is returning to Gulfport the week of Nov. 7-11. The tournament will include a field of 90 players competing for a $100,000 purse. The Windance Country Club will play host to the Senior Series 1995 return in conjunction with the presenting sponsor, Casino Magic.

The 1994 Senior Series at Windance brought in many well known senior golfers, including Bud Allin, Jacky Cupit, Babe Hickey, Larry Laoretti, Charlie Sifford and the champion, Orville Moody.

Not only did the Senior Series attract established golfing names, it also brought forth many up and coming senior golfers like Walt Morgan, Chuck Montalbano and Bruce Summerhays.

All three professionals have since gone on to prove themselves as true competitors in senior professional golf. After earning a 1995 Senior PGA Tour card at the national qualifying tournament, these men attributed their successes to the Senior Series.

"The Senior Series was the main reason for my qualifying, period... it's that simple," Summerhays said. Summerhays is currently 17th on the 1995 Senior PGA Tour money list with earnings of over $400,000.

The Senior Series not only provides an avenue of professional competition for up and coming senior golfers, it is also recognized by other professional athletes serious about the game of golf.

"The players on the Senior Series are the legends we grew up with," said George Hough, president of Global Sport Management. Players like John Brodie, the former quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers, Ralph Terry, former New York Yankee's pitcher and MVP for the 1962 World Series, and the legendary golf instructor Bob Toski.

"These players truly enjoy the game of golf and appreciate support from the fans. They're a fun group to watch."

Jimmy Powell, two-time Senior PGA champion and winner of the inaugural Senior Series event last year, said he was pleased with the new tour.

"I think Global Sport has got something here that is needed," he said. "This new avenue is a wonderful thing to get started."

For information on the Senior Series at Windance, call (601) 832-5374. All net proceeds from this event go to Catholic Social Services.

Familiar faces in victory lane at Sun Coast

Scott Holt and Jamie Luzenberg shared the front row in the 20-car field of Pro Stocks. Luzenberg moved to the front, followed by Holt as the race got underway.

The two front runners had little trouble holding their positions, but there was a battle for the third spot between Donald Parker, Bubba McQueen and Wallace Allen.

McQueen managed to move by Parker midway through the race. Luzenberg went flag to flag for the win. Allen won the first heat race. Flubsy Triplett won the second for his first win of the season.

Jamie Favre claimed another Four-Cylinder modified in flag to flag fashion. David Allison started alongside Favre, but as the race began, he got loose on a couple of occasions allowing David Taylor and Marus Jacob Jr. to move by. Kalif Sellier held off heat winner Jerry Favre to finish fourth.

Rodney Bruce used his pole starting position to claim a flag to flag win in the Street Stock feature. There was little change in the front three as Scarbrough held off Tommy Fortenberry to round out the top three. Heat wins went to James Miller, Chuckie Smith and Ryan Plaisance.

The Late Model Sportsman feature went to Billy Joe Schonewitz over Mike Ladner. Ladner was the only one to come close enough to challenge Schonewitz for the lead and this was only on yellow flag restarts.

Mitchell Williams chased Ladner, holding off K. I. Davis III to claim the third spot. Vernon Lee won the earlier heat race over Williams.

Heat winner Jason Kilpatrick appeared to be headed for the feature win in the Rookie class before he spun sending him to the rear of the pack. Steven Pate II claimed the lead and held on to the finish. Bill Walker finished second over Tommy Bryant and Kathy Ladner.

Next Saturday will be the last races of the season at Sun Coast. A banquet will be held the following Saturday. Points winners as well as other awards will be presented.

Not to forget the ladies and their Powder Puff race, Gwen Bruce added another win to her ever-growing list. Donna Winsted finished second over Karen Kuhn and Shanna Koerber.

Carey

Golf tourney

William Carey College will host the annual Homecoming Alumni Golf Tournament Friday, Nov. 10 at 10:30 a.m. at Timbermont Golf Course on Hwy. 11 South in Hattiesburg.

The format will be two-man scramble. Teams will be picked by handicaps, and requests for partners will be considered.

Prizes will go to the player who gets closest to the hole and the player who makes the longest drive. The public is invited to join the Carey alumni on the links.

Fee for the tournament is $40 per person and includes green fee, cart and gift certificates. Door prizes will be given.

Reservations may be made by calling Tracy English at (601) 582-6111.

Alumni game

The William Carey College Old Timers Alumni baseball game will be Nov. 11 at 2:30 p.m. on the H. R. Morgan Field on the Hattiesburg campus.

All former Carey baseball players are invited. A free baseball clinic will be available for the children of players attending.

The alumni baseball game is one of the scheduled events celebrating WCC's Homecoming. Admission is free, and the public is invited.

For information, call (601) 582-6110 or 582-6111.

Homecoming

The William Carey College Crusaders will take on Athens State in the Clinton Gymnasium on the Hattiesburg campus Nov. 11 at 7 p.m. as part of its annual Homecoming events.

A cookout and tailgate party will start at 5 p.m. The WCC Homecoming queen will be crowned during halftime. The public is invited.

Tickets for the basketball game are $2-$4 and can be purchased at the door. Cost of the cookout varies. For information, contact the Alumni Office at 582-6107.

Water level can help locate bass

No matter how large or small the lake bass tournament pro Randy Dearman is fishing, 100 acres or 100,000 acres, the shoreline is the first thing that tells him where to begin looking for bass.

"What I try to determine immediately is whether the water level is rising or falling,"

Bassin' with the pros explains the Johnson Outboard Pro Staff angler. "That will be the first major key that helps pinpoint bass, and a quick glance at the shoreline normally shows you what the water is doing."

If the lake level is rising, says Dearman, the bass will move up into shallow water. If the lake level is falling, the bass will move out toward deeper water.

"This occurs everywhere in any lake," notes the full-time tournament angler and guide, "including the tributary creeks, the bays, and the main lake. The more drastic the water level change, the faster the bass will re-locate."

When the water is falling, the previous water line will usually still be visible along the shoreline, especially on trees and rocks. Then the water is rising, this water line will not be present.

If the lake level appears to be holding steady, Dearman may put a stick in the ground at the water level, or he will note the level on a particularly prominent rock that he can check each day.

The Johnson pro believes baitfish may be the first to move shallow when the lake level is rising because they can take advantage of the newly flooded cover. Bass move shallow to feed on the baitfish as well as on other foods that get washed into the lake.

"Another thing that happens is that water closest to the shore may actually be the clearest, especially if vegetation is present," says Dearman. "Bass do not particularly like extremely muddy water."

Fast rising water will not only move bass quickly but also long distances. During the tournament several years ago on Sardis Lake in Mississippi, the lake level was rising a foot each day. Because the land surrounding the lake is flat, Dearman chased his bass half a mile inland from one day to the next.

When the water level is dropping, bass move to the first available cover or structure, such as bushes, standing timber, ditches, or channel breaks.

"One of the best places to look for bass is along points, because the fish can simply follow these out toward deeper water," says Dearman. "Big bass seem to move faster, too. Several national tournaments have been won by anglers who found places the bass would move to and were there waiting for them."

ASA funds GCCA

The American Sportfishing Association (ASA) announced it will fund a lobbyist to help the Gulf Coast Conservation Association of Mississippi win commercial netting restrictions in Mississippi waters in 1996.

ASA's South Central Regional Council, which includes Mississippi, is donating a portion of the council's discretionary funds to pay for the lobbyist.

"ASA and the Gulf Coast Conservation Association of Mississippi will be working hard to make sure Mississippi citizens understand that the state's recreational fisheries are important to the economic well being of the state," said ASA president Mike Hayden.

"Sportfishing in Mississippi is responsible for more than 8,740 jobs and an economic output of almost $490 million. Mississippi saltwater anglers spend more than $44 million each year pursuing their favorite species. Commercial fishermen have effectively used lobbyists for years. We intend to level the playing field. It is important that these fishery resources be conserved for future angling generations."

ASA provided each of its six regional councils with funding to support region-specific projects that increase angler participation, conserve fishery resources or otherwise meet ASA's goals. Earlier this year, Mississippi came within one vote of severely restricting the activities of commercial fishermen, who are flocking to Mississippi waters after being banned in most other Gulf Coast waters.

Darrell Lowrance, chairman of the region, said, "The most pressing conservation issue in our region today is the situation in Mississippi where only a few key policy makers, who don't understand the effect that recreational fisheries have on jobs and the state's economy are allowing the public's resources to be wiped out by overzealous netters."

ASA is a nonprofit industry association working to ensure healthy and sustainable fisheries resources, increase sportfishing participation, and provide valuable services to make its members more profitable. Its staff and members are involved in education, conservation, promotion and marketing on behalf of the sportfishing industry and more than 50 million American anglers.

Inspect boat bottom

Blisters often appear on the bottom of fiberglass boats and their discovery, usually after a boat is hauled out of the water at season's end, strikes fear in the heart of many a boat owner.

"Blisters are an inescapable part of boating," according to Ernie Braatz, technical services manager for Boat Owners Association of the United States (BOAT/U.S.). "Fortunately, the typical case of blisters isn't usually as bad as it looks and often costs less to repair than many think."

To provide boat owners with options for coping with them, BOAT/U.S. has produced Boating With Blisters. Some advice from this handy, non-technical guide:

- Inspect the bottom of your boat immediately after removing it from the water. Don't panic if blisters are found. They may not be serious. Contact the boat's manufacturer, a marine surveyor and a fiberglass repairer to help determine the extent of the problem and the appropriate remedy. Some manufacturers may help with repair costs.

- Some blisters are cosmetic and can easily be repaired. If you're a do-it-yourselfer, you'll find the simple tools and materials you need at a marine supply store.

- The cost of having a repairer remove blisters and refinish the hull will vary for every boat depending on the severity of the condition. Be sure to get more than one estimate and check the references of the repairer.

- If you're shopping for a boat, don't turn down an otherwise "good deal" because of a few blisters. Remember, they're very common, and most can be repaired at reasonable cost.

For a free copy of Boating With Blisters, call BOAT/U.S. at 1-800-274-4877.

YOUR BOTTOM LINE CHEVY DEALER

For Joe & Kathleen Monti, growing and expanding their business on the Coast has been an enlightening experience.

"We started banking with The Peoples Bank in 1987. We were looking for an alternative source for our banking — someone who provided the services we needed when we needed them."

"They helped us with the expansion of our business... through credit lines during our growth period... and with cash flow. They've accommodated us financially when we needed the help."

"The people at The Peoples Bank are super, and they're there whenever we need them. They know us, they know our business. They're willing to ask questions about our business, to help us."

"When we were ready to expand, the first thing we did was call Peoples. They sat down with us, looked at our situation and looked at our plan. They said, 'Go ahead.' They are very open with their customers and were ready to help us expand to meet the growing needs on the Coast. There are a lot of things going on down here and businesses that are already here need to expand and improve... need to meet the challenge. And Peoples is ready to help us."

"Holding Steady As You Grow"

Life is complicated. So are franchise agreements.

Most of us tire of the complexity of legal documents. With this thought in mind, we offer the following shortened explanation:

- Franchise Agreements are not required. The Public Service Commission establishes which electric utility serves an area.
- The law requires that electric utilities pay a municipality 2% of all residential and commercial revenue generated within the municipality. In return, the electric utility gets to use certain rights of way owned by the city.
- Mississippi Power has a Franchise Agreement with all of the municipalities it serves. These agreements were signed in 1971 and will expire next year.
- The current agreements provide that Mississippi Power pay to the Municipality 3% of all revenue generated within the municipality.
- Mississippi Power is proposing to continue this arrangement. We believe that the economic vitality of the municipalities we serve is the source of our financial strength. Unlike many companies, Mississippi Power cannot "pull up stakes" and go somewhere else. Because these agreements have been in place for a long time (nearly 25 years), the municipalities have benefited from the additional revenue resulting in lower taxes for those who live within the cities.
- The new agreements are identical to the current agreements except the city could not go into the electric utility business during the term of the agreement.
- In order for us to continue the current arrangement, we must have a Franchise Election.
- In order to continue the current arrangement, we must have a majority vote in favor of the agreement.

For more than 70 years, we've worked to provide you electricity at a competitive price. We've also worked to provide a level of customer service that is second to none. We're going to continue to do that as we build a future together. We also want to continue to be a part of the economic vitality of the cities we serve. It's simple. Vote yes.

PRCC to entertain Co-Lin

Keith Daniels says the Copiah-Lincoln Wolves mirror his Pearl River Community College Wildcats.

"They have a solid football team with an offense which likes to control the football," said Daniels. "We are pretty evenly matched on defense and in the kicking game."

The Wildcats and the Wolves are 6-2 on the year, and both have lost to the Hinds Eagles. The Wildcats have a 4-1 division mark. Co-Lin is 2-2. The game this week is set for 2:30 p.m. in the Dobie Holden Stadium.

"Co-Lin got on track early in the year," said Daniels. "And they have been getting better and better. This past week the Wildcats beat Southwest 31-0 while Co-Lin was upending Coahoma 44-6 in Clarksdale. "I can't see a great deal of difference between the two teams," said Daniels. "I expect it to be a 60-minute football game."

The Wildcats beat Co-Lin 35-17 last year, but it was the Wolves spoiling the Wildcats' homecoming 16-13 in 1993.

Pearl River beat Co-Lin 37-28 in 1992, however, the Wolves won nine of the previous 10 contests dating back to 1982. PRCC lost only two to the Wolves from 1967 through 1981.

Kenshun Smith led the Wildcats against Southwest this past week with 181 yards rushing, two touchdowns and one two-point conversion.

Quarterback Jerel Posey rushed 12 times for 82 yards, and he completed four of seven passes for another 66 yards. Clifton Gillard caught one pass for 31 yards and Tim Pittman snagged one for 25 yards.

The Pearl River "defense allowed the Bears a total of 73 yards and just seven first downs on the night."

Wildcat players of the week included Smith on offense and Jarvis Lipscomb on defense. Rodney Thompson picked up the intimidator defensive award, and Clifton Gillard received the dominator offensive lineman award. O'Lo Williams was the special teams player honored.

"I reminded my players that they must stay focused this week," said Daniels. "It's homecoming week, and I want the players to participate in the fun. But they must remember the challenge facing them on Saturday."

A victory of Co-Lin would give the Wildcats second place in the south Division. "That's not a bad position, considering Hinds is also the number one team in the nation," said Daniels.

Hancock JROTC sponsors professional wrestlers

The Hancock High School JROTC program is sponsoring a professional wrestling match Nov. 11 in the Hancock High School gym. Doors will open at 6 p.m., and the first match will begin at 7:30 p.m. There will be no reserved seating.

The wrestling matches are sanctioned by the Mississippi Gaming Commission and are family entertainment. Billy Lyons is the athletic commissioner and can be contacted at 1-601-435-2826 for questions.

The HHS JROTC Cadets are selling tickets and are seeking corporate/group sponsors to ensure a successful venture.

Ticket prices are $6 per person in advance, $8 at the door, children under 5 are free.

Special group rates are available. Those interested in becoming a JROTC sponsor or purchasing tickets at the group rate, contact Tom Jordan at 466-9155 for information.

All group sponsors will be recognized during the wrestling matches and in the local newspapers.

The cadets will receive 50 percent of all ticket sales. Proceeds will be used to defray transportation costs to various competitions attended by the Drill, Rifle and Explorer teams.

Hancock High announces homecoming court

Hancock High School will hold its homecoming game against Bay High School Friday at 7:30 p.m. The homecoming court will be presented at 7 p.m.

Homecoming floats, constructed by each grade, will be judged Friday at 7 a.m. and be on display during the game.

Members of the homecoming court are freshman maids Amanda Pullen and Amber Ladner; sophomore maids Nicole Mauffray and Madelyn Boudreaux; junior maids Gina Lee and Stephanie Spiers; and senior maids Beth Camp, Jenny Stewart, Myndi Kuhlmann and Krasinda Cuevas.

Pullen is the daughter of Ken and Barbara Pullen of Diamondhead. She was a junior high cheerleader in the seventh and eighth grades and is a member of the varsity cheerleading squad this year.

Pullen is an honor roll student. In the seventh grade she was named a TIP Student and participated in the Gifted Program. She served as secretary of the Junior High Beta Club in the seventh and eighth grades. She serves as freshman class representative for the Student Council and attends Diamondhead Baptist Church, where she is an active member of the youth group and drama/choir team.

Ladner is the daughter of Gregory Ladner of Dedeaux and Alecia Gardner of Diamondhead. She was a junior high cheerleader in the eighth grade and is a member of the varsity cheerleading squad this year. Ladner was selected Miss Hancock Junior High in the eighth grade and Freshman Beauty this year by her classmates. She is a member of FCA.

Mauffray is the daughter of C. J. and Diane Mauffray of Kiln. She is an honor roll student. In her seventh grade class at St. Clare, she earned the highest grade point average. She was a member of the Junior National Honor Society and received the Religion Award at OLA.

Mauffray participated in the Ace Competitions at St. Stanislaus representing St. Clare. She was OLA's ninth grade representative for Campus Ministry. She is a member of Interact, SADD, FCA and the Princess Dress Shoppe Teen Board. Mauffray was selected Tenth Grade Beauty by her classmates.

Boudreaux is the daughter of Lloyd and Sandra Boudreaux of Diamondhead. She is a member of the HHS marching band, FBIA and Interact. She was selected "Sophomore Class Favorite" by her classmates. She is the co-captain of the HHS cross-country team and co-captain of the HHS track team. She has been on the track team for four years.

Lee is the daughter of Reggie and Peggy Lee of Pass Christian. She was a member of the HJH cheerleading squad and the HJH basketball team. She has been a member of FBIA and CLC. Last year she was selected Sophomore Homecoming Maid, and this year Junior Class Favorite by her classmates.

Spiers is the daughter of Michael and Wanda Spiers of Bay St. Louis. She is a member of the HHS dance team, Talons. She is an honor roll student and a former member of the National Junior Honor Society.

Spiers was a two-year participant in the JROTC program — one year Air Force and one year Army. She was selected Sophomore Beauty and Sophomore Homecoming Maid last year. This year she has been selected Junior Beauty by her classmates. She has been nominated to attend the Congressional Youth Leadership Council in Washington.

Camp is the daughter of Clyde and June Camp of Pass Christian. She serves as vice president of the National Honor Society and Student Council representative. She is a member of the Beta Club, Mu Alpha Theta, Interact, Science Club, FCA, and HHS dance team, Talons. She is a member of the Princess Dress Shoppe Teen Board where she serves as the captain of her color group and was awarded Most Dedicated Teen Board Member. She was recognized in Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Camp is an active member of St. Ann's CYO. Her involvement has included painting the church, participating in the Senior Citizens Thanksgiving dinner and assisting with the community Christmas parade.

Stewart is the daughter of Tom and Dona Stewart of Picayune. She is the senior class president, Student Council treasurer, member of Mu Alpha Theta, SADD, FCA, National Honor Society and an active member of Lee's Chapel No. 2 Baptist Church.

Stewart has been an active member of the softball team for four years and the track team for three years. She has been recognized in Who's Who Among American Students and has been selected 1995-96 Miss Hancock High School by her classmates.

Kuhlmann is the daughter of Donald and Sue Kuhlmann of Leetown. She is a member of SADD, FCA, Interact, Key Club and yearbook staff. She is an active member of the CYO of Annunciation Catholic Church.

Kuhlmann was a member of the junior high cheerleading squad for two years and the varsity squad for two years. She served as captain of the junior high squad in the eighth grade and captain of the varsity cheerleading squad this year.

Cuevas is the daughter of Gene Cuevas of Bay St. Louis and the late June Cuevas. She is a member of FCA, SADD, yearbook staff and Student Council representative.

Cuevas has been recognized in Who's Who Among American High School Students. She is co-captain of the HHS dance team, Talons. She has been a member of the dance team for three years. She was selected the senior with the Best Personality by her classmates.
